Richmond Assured of Federal Appropriation

At a conference of members of civic bodies to discuss news from Washington regarding harbor appropriations, George S. Wall stated that he has been in touch with Senator Phelan and Congressman Curry by letter and wire and has been assured that chances are bright for Richmond getting its initial federal money through this session. President Wilson has encouraged representatives with the assurance that he will allow a harbor bill for $44,000,000 to be passed by the national law makers this year.

H. W. Pulse became a benedict on Wednesday evening, when he was joined in matrimonial bonds with Miss Hazel K. Jones of Tacoma, Washington, by the Rev. Richard White of Oakland. Richmond to Be In State League

A movement is now on foot in baseball circles to form an interstate league to include Sacramento, Stockton, San Jose, Vallejo and Richmond. This would make a strong chain of cities, and there is no doubt about the success of the venture. Richmond is a class-A town for the national pastime. Much credit is due Manager Luce for his enterprise and persistent efforts in giving Richmond a good quality of baseball, when big league competition was within a few minutes from our doors.

A good baseball team is a fine advertisement for a city. Richmond will have a strong team the coming season, says Manager Luce, whose judgment in the selection of players has always been highly satisfactory to the fans and the generous Richmond patrons of the sport.

Telephone Co. Matter Adjusted

The phone company's conduit improvement work will henceforth proceed with local labor, due to the intervention of Councilman W. L. Lane and Fred W. Heckman, the latter business agent for the central labor body.

Since the water wagon became popular in the northwest, old-time lumber jacks now drown their sorrow with wood alcohol.

Senator Phelan Working For Richmond

Good news comes from Washington that Senator Phelan is co-operating with Congressman Chas. F. Curry for the appropriation by which Richmond harbor improvements will soon be carried out. Congressman Chas. F. Curry is working hard for the Richmond appropriation, and with the assistance of Senator Phelan the $100,000 item for Richmond harbor should be forthcoming.

It is announced that approximately $50,000,000 will be allowed by this session of congress for harbor and river improvements.

GALLIPOLI CAMPAIGN ONE HUGE BLUNDER, DECLARES BARTLETT

New York.—Ellis Ashmead Bartlett, the war correspondent who represented the English press at the Dardanelles, and was recalled for expressing his views in a personal letter addressed to the prime minister, is here on his way to Australia, where he will deliver a series of lectures at the request of the commonwealth government.

He said that the whole Gallipoli campaign had been a series of blunders commencing with underestimating the fighting powers of the Turks and sending a naval contingent to make an attack alone, which warned the Turks of what was coming and gave them ample time to dig in. Another serious blunder, he said, was the landing of troops at Anzac and Suvla Bay instead of making a big army at the neck of the peninsula, which would have cut the Turks off from all their supplies and rendered them powerless.

"Thousands of men were lost by bad jets, aeroplanes, bombs, fever, dysentery and all kinds of diseases," Mr. Bartlett continued, "along the Gallipoli peninsula, where the conditions were dreadful. For all this sacrifice the allies never reached their objective points. Six fresh divisions were hastily sent out from England last summer to replace the troops that had been killed or disabled, and a final drive was made August 6, which was a failure owing to the surrounding conditions. Modern warfare is a question of strategic defense. That is to get well behind three lines of trenches fortified by barbed wire entanglements and let the enemy attack you. The Turks had that position against the allies, and held it."

"It was the failure of the final attack in August that caused Bulgaria to go over to the Teutonic powers and that settled all hope of getting Constantinople. They could not expect to cut through a fresh army of 500,000 men, trained like the Bulgarians, as well as fight the Turks. There was practically no fighting from that time until I left on October 15, when the evacuation had already been decided upon."

"The withdrawal from the Dardanelles was one of the bluckiest things the government has done during the war, because the cabinet ministers knew that it would cause an outcry in the United Kingdom and the colonies after so many lives had been uselessly sacrificed."

"The landing at Salonika was made too late and the force was too small to be of any service to save Serbia. The British government realized this and was against sending any troops there at all, but the French cabinet decided that the moral effect in neutral countries would be very bad if the allies allowed the Serbians to be driven into the sea without making any effort to save them. As a matter of fact, the Serbian army had not been destroyed, as the troops have nearly all escaped into Albania and Montenegro."

"The German policy, which was very sound, was to drag the allies into the Near East because he does not want any pressure on the western front while he is bogged down with Russia on his east side. That was all this blunder being put up about the Suez canal and the attack on Egypt. In that case it is England which has the strategic defense, and the enemy will have to come and try to dig them out, and be at the same disadvantage as we were in the Gallipoli peninsula."

"Now that the withdrawal of troops from the Near East has been decided upon, the allies will concentrate for a concerted attack upon Germany in the western front, which should have been done at first instead of spitting up their armies."

"England does not want the United States to enter the war, but prefers that she should remain neutral and furnish her with supplies."

"The Americans were the finest body of men I have ever seen, and it was awful to see them suffering under the conditions that existed on the Gallipoli peninsula, with no rest, no water, no food, being washed up out of the trenches in rainstorms, and the men which died up everything between the lines."

ASSAILS GERMANS AND IS "CALLED DOWN"

Washington.—Representative Gardner was vigorously assailed January 7 in the House by two Republican colleagues, Stafford and Cooper of Wisconsin, when he made a speech criticizing German Americans and the German nation.

"The remarks we have just heard were as violent as would have been made in the British Parliament," shouted Mr. Cooper, who is the ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

In an impassioned address Mr. Stafford declared Mr. Gardner to be "more British than American," criticized him for the nature of his remarks, "when every member should weigh his words carefully," and strongly defended German Americans. Mr. Stafford took particular exception to the declaration that German Americans were destroying American munition factories with their "gold and dynamite."

"Those charges cannot be made against the 8,000,000 German Americans who are in this country," he declared. "I am not advocating the German cause, but I know that in my own districts munition factories surrounded by thousands of German Americans are running daily without interference. I, therefore, rise to resent this baseless charge, which is unworthy of any man."

Gardner approved the administration's stand that it would be unneutral to embargo war munitions, and declared that a peace in Europe now would be inconclusive and would mean another war. He assailed the pacifists, the hypochondriacs and the cotton interests.

San Rafael.—During last week the homes of half a dozen families in San Francisco for the winter have been robbed. In Larkspur the houses of Joseph Harris, Stanley Ford and Harry Ward were ransacked, and silver, jewelry and clothing taken. The Larkspur Trustees have offered a reward of $100 for the arrest of the thieves. In Kentfield thieves entered the residence of Judge E. P. Morgan of San Francisco and stole articles valued at $200.

Orville.—Miss Dorothea Jones, a teacher in the Kanak Peak School district, has thrown up her job. In four months, Miss Jones confessed, she received sixteen proposals of marriage from the swains of the district. Miss Jones indignantly denies that any have been accepted. "They are looking for a cook, not a wife," she said. "I never did believe in sixteen to one, and when the sixteenth proposal came along I thought it was time to quit." It is understood there is no lack of applications for Miss Jones' job.

CANNON HAMMER AT CZERNOWITZ

Rain of Steel, Solid Shot and Explosive Projectiles Smash Way for Russian Attack

Vienna.—Russian guns on the Beskubian frontier and the Strpa region during the New Year's fighting were at least 5000, according to the official statement issued by the War Office.

London.—Some idea of the determined nature of the Russian blow on the Beskubian front is conveyed by Petrograd dispatches which state that the Russians for fifty hours concentrated 100 guns on the Austrians' positions at Czernowitz, using solid shot, shell and shrapnel, as a preparation for infantry attack. The Russian communications do not yet claim that Czernowitz has fallen, but dispatches from German sources admit the Teutonic position there is critical.

It is not yet clear whether the Russian operations in this theater herald a big general offensive movement of all the Russian armies from the Baltic to the Roumanian border, or merely are designed to weaken the pressure of the central powers in the Balkans and incidentally on the Italian front.

All of the Russian operations thus far revealed are being pressed along the railway lines, which simplify the problems of the winter supply of food, ammunition and fuel.

The situation along other fronts is comparatively quiet.

In connection with the submarine activity in the Mediterranean sea, an Athens dispatch notes that alarm is felt there owing to the fact that none of the three ships laden with grain purchased in America either has arrived or been signaled.

London.—The sinking of a British submarine off the coast of Holland was officially announced January 7. The crew was saved.

Amsterdam.—The accident to the British submarine was due to the fact that it grounded and sprang a leak, having taken the wrong course off Noordhinder. The crew has been interned in the naval barracks.

Oakland.—Detective Bert Frazer, after several days' investigation into the death of Mrs. Katherine Morton, whose body was found Sunday night, January 2, submerged in a pool of water at the foot of Grayson street, January 7 reported that according to his findings the woman was not murdered or attacked in any way. Frazer found that she had left San Francisco to visit friends in Berkeley. She had evidently taken the wrong train, wandered around till exhausted and fallen into the pool. It was storming at the time.

Avoiding the Incongruous.

"Are you going to run a picture of this woman who has just fallen heir to a large fortune?" asked the reporter.

"No," replied the city editor. "We couldn't get one."

"All right. It will be safe for me to say in the story that she is young and beautiful."

GETTING THE WAR MOVIES

This is a French official cinematograph operator at work in the first line trenches. In making moving pictures of the fighting the operator has to take as many chances as the soldier.

NO ANIMOSITY NOW

Century Has Wrought Change in Feelings.

French Soldiers View Mementoes of the Downfall of Napoleon, Exhibited in British Capital, Without Expression of Emotion.

Every American visitor to London, probably, makes a call at the three-story building opposite the Horse Guard, the former banqueting hall of the palace of Whitehall, from a window on the second floor of which King Charles I stepped onto the execution platform and, after addressing the gathered throng, bravely met his tragic fate, remarks the London Times.

The building is now called the Royal United Service Museum, and in the main hall, contrasting strangely with the richly figured ceilings by Peter Paul Rubens, are thousands of relics recalling the almost numberless wars in which the manhood of this country has engaged.

Yesterday the writer followed through the turnstile of the museum two French infantry soldiers, on leave from the front, fresh from months of fighting, side by side with Tommy Atkins, against a common foe. In the great hall in enormous show cases, are models setting out the exact positions at the battles of Trafalgar and Waterloo, those historic combats on land and on sea which did so much to mar the fortunes of Napoleon and to shatter the predominant position of France.

In one case little patches of make-believe smoke trace the two lines, the allies and the French, while clusters of tiny red brick houses mark the positions of villages of Belgium familiar even to every follower of the present world struggle.

In the second case the fleet of Nelson is shown at the critical moment when, led by the Victory and the Fighting Temeraire, it pierced the lines of the French and Spanish fleets. Indeed, it seemed to the writer as he hung over the showcases and studied the positions, that Nelson used the "phalanx" as effectively as did Von Mackensen in Galicia, and as French and Joffre are trying to do in France and Belgium now.

But, beside these two cases, there are more immediate links with the French and English past. Nearby is the skeleton of Napoleon's favorite charger. In another case is the curved sword worn by Wellington at most of his famous engagements. Many are the relics of the peninsula campaign.

Here is the uniform, cape and hat worn by Wellington during the whole peninsula campaign, and "deposited" in the museum by his valet. On every side are guns taken from the French, while overhead are battle flags bearing the scars of honorable warfare.

And the two French soldiers viewed it all without enmity or unpleasant comment.

PROTECTION FOR THE RACER

Novel Armored Suit That It Is Thought Would Save Life in Event of Accident.

A pneumatic armor has been patented for the purpose of saving the lives of motorcycle riders, and particularly racers, who, with this protective garb, may smash into each other or dive into a fence without the least regard for the consequences. The armor consists of a one-piece suit of stout material into which the wearer is laced.

Attached to the exterior of the suit is a long tube curled back and forth until the entire person of the wearer is protected by a cushion of air. The latter is pumped into the tube in the same manner as a tire is inflated, and when it is desired to escape so that the outfit will take up as little space as possible. The inflation and deflation is done through the means of the check valves at the sleeves and at the trousers' top.

When a man has built a barn—

When a man has cleared a farm—
Tax him!
When he lays another roof,
When he grows another hoof,
Hustle 'round and get the proof,

Don't tax him!

Advertising Pays.

The common supposition that advertising is an expense is a fallacy. It is a bugaboo made of thin air and a yellow streak. The fact of the matter is, that the non-advertiser PAYS for it out of the business he loses to competitors who do advertise.

THE TERMINAL

ISSUED EVERY FRIDAY.
Established in 1903.

Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Legal notices must be paid for on or before delivery of affidavit of publication. No exception to this rule.
